ADDRESSING DISASTERS, CLIMATE CHANGE AND ENVIRONMENTAL DEGRADATION: SOLUTIONS FOR HUMAN MOBILITY AND SECURITY

Each year, millions of people are forced to move as a result of natural hazards and environmental degradation. Climate change exacerbates existing threats and introduces new challenges to human mobility and security. The Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration recognizes that there is a need to better map, understand and address these migration movements. It also calls for adaptation and resilience strategies and mechanisms for addressing vulnerabilities of persons affected by climate and environmental changes.

This side event will bring together distinguished speakers and experts in a variety of disciplines to present policy mechanisms and best practices for community resilience, human mobility and human security.
